Stora Enso Building and Living provides wood-based innovations and solutions for everyday living and housing needs. Its product range covers all areas of urban construction, from supporting structures to interior design and environmental construction. The further-processed products include massive wood elements and housing modules, wood components and pellets. A variety of sawn timber goods complete the selection. Building and Living serves public and private sector customers, such as construction companies, merchandisers and retailers.

Building and Living has more than twenty production units in Europe and operates globally, with its main markets in Europe, the Middle East and North Africa, and Asia Pacific. The products are made of renewable, high-quality European pine or spruce with 100% traceability. With carbon captured in the wood products, they offer a truly sustainable means of reducing climate change.
